By Douglas H. Shepard, 2013

The following are historical summaries of selected neighborhood "corner stores," i.e. the confectionaries, meat counters, ice cream parlors, fruit markets, and small groceries as found in Dunkirk's city directories from the late 19th century through the mid-20th century. Most of the historical summaries begin with 1912, but in some cases, earlier directories have also been consulted. There are gaps in the historical summaries where no directory was available or where a directory was skipped in order to focus on more recent entries. Listings are in numerical order by today's street addresses. Many photos of existing buildings are courtesy of Diane Andrasik, and others are courtesy of Google Maps.
